

Digital identifiers of Egyptian researchers and their reflection on the academic classification of Egyptian universities: a comparative analytical study

Review

Tasneem Ali

Supervisor, Libraries and Information Management,
New Mansoura University, Egypt
tasnim.elsayed50@gmail.com

Copyright (c) 2024
Tasneem Ali

This work is licensed under a [Creative Commons Attribution
4.0 International License](https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/).

Abstract

Digital IDs for researchers are an important tool for scientific publishing, as they help identify researchers, distinguish them from each other, and accurately determine their scientific contributions, which in turn improves the scientific performance indicators of researchers, universities, and research institutions. Digital IDs are a series of numbers and letters that are given to people or sources and help uniquely identify them.

Keywords

Author identifiers, ORCID, scientific productivity